Nicole,

If you would let me know as soon as possible, I would appreciate it. Defense counsel in the case is calling, calling.

Thank you!

Dear Ryan:

I am not sure what the procedure is, bu I got a phone call from the Celotex Trust this morning regarding the above named case. I know that your firm is handling the trial end of this so I am hoping you will help. The defense counsel has served a subpoena [REDACTED] Mr. Kananian's claim and wanted to know how we'd like to proceed. Please let me know at your earliest convenience—

To Felicia,

The Celotex trust is being bombarded with phone calls regarding Mr. Kananian's bankruptcy claim. The defense counsel has served a subpoena for his claim. They have not yet complied with the subpoena and have called us to see how best to proceed. How would you like the trust to handle the subpoena? Would you like them to comply or does the attorney plan on raising any objection? Please let us know ASAP as the trust has been receiving numerous calls the last couple of days and will have to comply if they don't get an answer soon. Thank you.

I spoke with Amy Hirsch at the Celotex Trust and requested that they send their usual f letter citing the confidentiality section of the Claims Resolution Procedures. This letter will go out, but she also wanted to touch bases with Dan Donaldson, Celotex gene counsel, because the defense counsel is being so aggressive (calling her 2-3 times a day requesting the documents). I told her I would be happy to speak with Don. I will let you know what comes of that conversation.

Hi Felicia,

The Celotex trust is being bombarded with phone calls regarding Mr. Kananian's bankruptcy claim. The defense counsel has served a subpoena for his claim. They have not yet complied with the subpoena and have called us to see how best to proceed. How would you like the trust to handle the subpoena? Would you like them to comply or does the attorney plan on raising any objection? Please let us know ASAP as trust has been receiving numerous calls the last couple of days and will have to comply they don't get an answer soon. Thank you.

The Celotex trust is being bombarded with phone calls regarding Mr.
Kananian's bankruptcy claim. The defense counsel has served a subpoena for the claim. They have not yet complied with the subpoena and have called us to see how best to proceed. How would you like the trust to handle the subpoena? Would you like them to comply or does the attorney plan on raising any objection? Please let us know ASAP as the trust has been receiving numerous calls the last couple of days and will have to comply if we don't get an answer soon. Thank you.

Dear Attorney Early and Maya:

As you may know, I am the paralegal working with attorneys Chris Andreas and Bruce Carter on the Harry Kananian trial in Ohio. Today, the attorneys advised me that your office is preparing revised bankruptcy claim forms and you will be forwarding them to us in pdf format next week.

Due to the trial issues in this case, we need to get your revised bankruptcy claims to the defendants by Tuesday morning /28/06. Can you please be sure to forward these to us by then? If you anticipate or encounter any problems meeting this deadline, please alert us as soon as possible.

Please forward the revised bankruptcy forms in pdf format to the following email addresses:
